

Sinclair Broadcasting is forcing their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election. Unless this program is balanced by a pro-Kerry presentation, this large corporation will be exerting undue, and possibly illegal, influence on this country's democratic process. They are not fulfilling their legal obligation to serve the public interest. This should not be allowed.

Actions such as Sinclair's clearly illustrate the great dangers of media consolidation. When fewer people control the nation's media, it becomes much easier for them to control the country. It is ridiculous to follow this course of action, simply to enhance the profit line of big businesses. We should be regulating to increase media diversity, not decrease it.
